Beg to invite the attention of the admirers of the Fine Arts, and the Literary public generally, to the superb copy of the following truly desirable work, which they have just received from London. It will be cheerfully shown to all upon application at their store.

THE HOLY LAND, SYRIA, IDUMEA, ARABIA, EGYPT, NUBIA,

This is believed to be the choicest copy of this superb work ever offered in this country. The drawings are colored in the most truthful and artistic manner, and present the appearance of the most elaborately executed water color drawings, each plate mounted on heavy English card board.

The work is generally considered to be the finest specimen of Lithography ever executed in Europe. It was published at £84 in parts, and is now getting exceedingly scarce, as the stones from which the prints were taken have been destroyed.

Valuable Engineering and Architectural Works,

Published by Wiley & Halsted, 351 Broadway.

MOSELEY.—THE MECHANICAL PRINCIPLES of Engineering and Architecture. By Henry Moseley, M.A., F.R.S. First American, from the 2d London edition. With Additions by D. H. Mahan, LL.D., U. S. Military Academy. With Illustrations on wood. 8vo. pp. 700, $3 50.

"Mr. Moseley, ex-Professor in King's College, London, has condensed into this volume his lectures on 'Engineering and Architecture.' Fully master of his subject, he treats it with precision and clearness, and his work has taken a high place as a standard text book in the leading educational institutions of England. The present American edition is an improvement on Mr. Moseley's, inasmuch as the original text is preserved, with the addition, by Prof. Mahan, of an Appendix, principally consisting of notes taken by himself, while a pupil at the French Military School at Metz."—Daily Times.

"This work is a standard one of its kind. It is fully and elegantly illustrated, and in its particular range is a complete manual for the Engineer and Architect."—Railroad Journal.

SMITH.—MANUAL OF TOPOGRAPHICAL Drawing. For the use of Surveyors, Students, &c. By Lieut. R. S. Smith, U. S. Army, Professor of Drawing in the U. S. Military Academy, West Point. 1 vol. 8vo. Illustrated with colored Maps and Diagrams. $1 50.

"This work is destined to fill a vacuum in the libraries of our Civil Engineers, which has long been deprecated as a serious misfortune. Lieut. Smith tells us how to acquire the position of a ready and correct draughtsman. Every department of field and office drawing is fully elucidated, and the manner of its execution explained; also instructions with regard to the use of colors, and the preparation of tools, materials, etc. Able and experienced engineers should have it as a matter of economy, while each student and beginner will find it indispensable."—Railroad Journal.

"It is at once simple and practical, concise and comprehensive, placing within the reach of any person of ordinary intelligence the power of mastering in a very short time, one of the most interesting of sciences. The subject is treated throughout with marked ability: nothing, in fact, being omitted which is necessary to afford a complete knowledge of Topographical Drawing."—American Railway Times.

FAIRBAIRN.—ON THE APPLICATION of Cast and Wrought Iron to Building Purposes. By Wm. Fairbairn, C.E., F.R.S., F.G.S. Illustrated with numerous wood-cuts, tables, &c. 8vo. $2 00.

"A most valuable book for builders and architects—every page is filled with practical information on the use of iron, and its combination with other materials in the construction of fire-proof buildings. The work is as essential to the builder as the plumb line, level or plane. Its diagrams are easily understood, and its figures and propositions the result of profound scientific research, verified by practice."—Railroad Journal.

"No engineer can do without this book."—Scientific American.

"One of the best and most thorough treatises on the subject."—Commercial Advertiser.

"The volume is full of plain, practical information on the use of iron in the construction of fire-proof buildings. In its pages we find not only theoretical investigation but careful demonstrative experiments, showing the undeviating laws which govern the strength of iron, and the most economical form in which it can be used in making secure fire-proof buildings."—American Railway Times.

MAHAN.—AN ELEMENTARY COURSE of Civil Engineering for the Use of the Cadets of the U.S. Military Academy. By D.H. Mahan, LL.D. 8vo. with numerous wood-cuts. New edition, with large Addenda, &c. $3.

"A thorough and complete rudimentary treatise for students and those intended for the engineering profession."—Scientific American.

MAHAN. — INDUSTRIAL DRAWING Comprising the Description and Uses of Drawing Instruments, the Construction of Plane Figures, the Projections and Sections of Geometrical Solids, Architectural Elements, Mechanism, and Topographical Drawing; with Remarks on the Method of Teaching the Subject For the Use of Academies and Common Schools. By D. H. Mahan, LL.D. 8vo. 20 steel plates, $2.

. The design of this work is to teach Geometrical Drawing, as applicable to all industrial pursuits, in a simple, practical manner, to persons even who have made no attainments in Elementary Mathematics. The work will be found useful to all who are preparing themselves for any of the Industrial pursuits in which Geometrical Drawing is required.

HATFIELD.—THE AMERICAN HOUSE Carpenter. A Treatise upon Architecture, Cornices and Mouldings, Framings, Doors, Windows and Stairs, together with the most important principles of Practical Geometry. Fifth edition. 330 engravings. 8vo. cloth. $2 25.

"Every house carpenter ought to possess one of these books; it is indisputably the best compendium of information on this subject that has hitherto been published."—Journal of Commerce.

"This work commends itself by its practical excellence. It needs no other recommendation."—U. S. Gazette.

"Few works of a practical kind from an American pen, will be found of a more intrinsic value than this admirable volume; and we feel more confidence in this opinion, from the fact of the press universally concurring in our verdict."—N. Y. Morning News.

"This is a really valuable work, and its astonishingly cheap price brings it in the reach of all." We heartily commend it."—Democratic Review.
